ebrary Launches New Food Science Subscription Database and Half-Off Bundles from CRC Press, Springer, Elsevier, and More

October 20, 2009 – Palo Alto, CA, USA – Scientists and engineers in the food and beverages industry can now more easily and efficiently find, use, and manage the information they need online to do their jobs more effectively.

ebrary®, a leading provider of digital content products and technologies, today announced the availability of a new subscription database that supports research and development needs in all aspects of food science through trusted content and powerful technology. The subscription may be supplemented with titles purchased individually as well as discounted bundles up to 50 percent off from industry renowned publishers such as CRC Press, Elsevier and Springer.

“Among other important responsibilities, food scientists and engineers play a critical role in ensuring the safety and quality of the food and beverages that we consume,” said Leslie Lees, Vice President of Content Development at ebrary. “We are proud to provide organizations in the global food and beverages industry with flexible, reliable, and affordable ways to find answers and make informed decisions.”

ebrary’s Food Science Subscription Database: Unlimited Access, Continued Growth

With more than 110 current and essential reference works, handbooks, manuals, and e-books from the industry’s top publishers such as CRC Press, Elsevier, Marcel Dekker, and Woodhead Publishing, the subscription database covers such topics as food manufacturing and processing, safety, quality assurance, nutrition, ingredients, storage and preservation, and government regulations.
